"ADVERTISING IS NO GOOD WHEN BUSINESS IS HARD TO GET"

A man made the above horrid statement after observing that advertiser after advertiser had withdrawn his advertising from publications in which it had been wont to appear.

This perceived absence of familiar "advertising from his favorite publications had a depressing effect on him. He had, he declared, convincing evidence that the courage and enterprise of sellers—of those who wanted his custom—had subsided. "If sellers pull in their horns," he said to himself, "then I had better do likewise." So he began spending less, and, by doing so, contributed something to the hardening of the arteries of his business. Also, he became a shudder of gloom among his friends and acquaintances.

Aforetime, when many advertisers were injecting into him their vigor, his own vitality of mind and will was pumped, and he radiated optimism and confidence, and spent his money without misgivings.

All those whom advertising sustains should, in addition, do what

They can be expected the honey that "advertising is no good when business is hard to get." The first thing to do is to maintain one's advertising.

Suppose a publisher should say, "Advertising is no good when business is hard to get." Is there not a trumpet call to all of us whom advertising sustains to show our unwavering faith in advertising by keeping advertising in gainful employment?

DUCLESS GLANDS

Most of the larger glands of the body, such as the liver, pancreas and salivary glands, produce a secretion which is passed out from the gland through a duct. There are some ductless glands, endocrine organs, or organs of internal secretion.

The secretions which the ductless glands produce enter the circulation and play an important part in regulating the development and the functions of the body. Because the secretions of these glands are not passed out through a duct, they are known as internal secretions, or hormones.

There are still other glands which belong to both groups. These glands produce one secretion and pass it out through a duct, as well as a secretion which is an internal secretion.

A ductless gland may be overactive, or it may produce a secretion which is abnormal. In such cases, depending upon the deviation from normal, disturbances in development or function occur.

The thyroid gland, situated in the front of the neck, is a ductless gland producing an internal secretion. An over active and probably abnormal thyroid gland gives rise to the condition known as exophthalmic goiter, or Graves' disease. The effects may be profound; the pulse becomes rapid, there is protrusion of the eyeballs, and the patient is restless and excitable.

The opposite condition, known as myxedema is due to a deficiency of the internal secretion of the thyroid gland. The body activities, both physical and mental, are slowed down. When the thyroid gland is absent at birth, the condition of cretinism occurs, and the child does not develop normally; he remains infantile, being retarded physically and mentally.

Fortunately, a lack of thyroid secretion can be overcome by feeding the required amount of thyroid substance in this way it is possible to restore cases in whom there is a thyroid deficiency to a normal condition. The response to treatment is dramatic in severe cases.

It is evident that the thyroid glands, through its internal secretion influence the functioning of the body. An excess brings about hyperactivity; a deficiency results in a depression of functions.

There are other ductless glands the pituitary and suprarenals. It would appear that they are related to each other in their functioning. Because the knowledge concerning the ductless glands is comparatively new, and because there is still so much about them that remains unknown, they have a mysterious appeal. The idea of what they might do has been exploited in many ways, and unsupported claims are made as to the treatment of a great variety of conditions.

At the present time, there is a definite field of usefulness for such gland therapy, but there is nothing to justify the exaggerated claims which are made, and which are only apt to mislead and arouse false hopes.

With the Legislators

(By S. C. CAIN)

The highlights of the week in the legislature was of course, the bringing down of the budget on Thursday by the provincial treasurer, Hon. R. G. Reid. It had been awaited with the keenest interest and as anticipated disclosed that the government intended to impose new taxation including a provincial income tax.

One of the chief items of interest disclosed was that the government intended, if at all possible, to keep the deficit for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1932, down to $4,000,000. It also showed that the government was budgeting for a surplus of $149,200 for the ensuing year. Estimated income was placed at $16,822,344 and estimated expenditure, $16,673,144.

New sources of revenue are to be tapped by means of a provincial income tax which will give exemption of $750 to single men and $1,500 for married men. The tax is to be graduated from one per cent upward and for corporations four per cent with an exemption of $1,000; continuation of the present contribution from salaries of civil servants and university staff is to be maintained; the old scale of amusement taxes is to be reinstated in order to catch the "two-bit routine" tickets; motor license fees and truck license fees are increased; there is to be a 10 per cent increase on corporations as far as license fees paid by insurance, elevator, express, telegraph and miscellaneous companies are concerned and there is to be a general increase in taxation of banks and of trust, loan and gas companies.

Following the introduction of the budget, there was much unfavorable comment among the opposition. It early became evident that the liberals are preparing to battle all along the line in regard to the new taxes reiterating their previous intimation that they would have to be shown the absolute necessity for new taxation before they would let it pass without challenge.

Notwithstanding the interest aroused by the budget it did not overshadow the keen verbal sword play that took place during the entire week. Wordy battles have been waged across the floor of the house. A regular barrage of criticism was laid down by the liberals when the house was dealing with motions by W. R. Howson, Edmonton, and L. A. Giroux.

Mr. Howson's motion to prevent any further loan guarantee or advance being made by the government, except in urgent cases without the authorization of the assembly, was finally defeated by a vote of 37 to 13 after a somewhat acrimonious debate.

Mr. Giroux's motion sought to extend the home-steading privileges to all Canadians who were British subjects instead of restricting it to three-year residents of Alberta. This too, was defeated by a vote of 11 to 40, the conservatives voting with the government.

On the U.P.A. member, C. W. St. Germain, St. Albert, voted with the liberals. Later members broke in on the floor of the motion of Mr. Giroux, but when the division bells rang they huddled from under and were not in their seats so that they did not have to vote against the administration.

Another outstanding feature of the week was the rushing through of a money bill which would enable the government to raise a loan of $5,000,000 through a group of bankers at 10 per cent. The interest rate on this loan will be 6.75 per cent.

In order that the bill might be introduced and put through, the rules of the house had to be suspended.

The tactics of the government in relation to the money bill, and the move of W. R. Howson, Liberal, to object to the most strenuous terms to the method of the government, claiming that they had no right to rush such important and far-reaching measure through the house with such haste.

This tactic to third reading was overruled on a vote of 43 to 19 the Conservatives and Independents supporting the government.

Before the bill was finally disposed of Mr. Howson again objected. He claimed the government had not the power to proceed in this fashion except in cases of extreme urgency and nothing that had been said by the premier or the provincial treasurer disclosed the slightest urgency. All that had been said was that if it did not go through that day then a number of Eastern brokers would be disappointed. He considered the government should study the disappointment of the tax payers rather than that of the brokers.

The premier declared that the urgency was evident. They had an opportunity to go on the market while other provinces and municipal bodies would have to wait. They only have of this opportunity a day or two previously.

Mr. Howson related that they should have been given notice that the government intended to introduce this bill. The Premier replied to the effect that he had discussed the matter with Mr. Howson.

Mr. Howson said that he had not discussed any bill with the Prime Minister, to which Mr. Brownlee replied that he had certainly told Mr. Howson of the offer made by the syndicate to the government. Mr. Giroux supported Mr. Howson's view after which the bill was read a third time.

In speaking to his motion to extend the home-steading privileges, Mr. Giroux made an impassioned appeal for a definite and more rapid policy of development for the Peace River country in particular and the northland in general. He contended it was not right to exclude native born Canadians of other provinces while foreigners who had lived in Alberta for three years were eligible.

After considerable debate, Ford J. White, Leduc, Calgary, moved in opposition which favored the liberals. This was defeated without a division.

The debate on Mr. Giroux's motion which followed was lengthy. Those taking part in it included Premier Brownlee, Hon. Geo. Woodley, Donald McLeod, U.P.A., C. E. Chisholm, Leduc, and D. M. Duggan, Calgary, U.P.A.

Mr. Woodley declared it was not desirable to abolish home-steading at the present time. He contended that the three-year residence rule had prevented some people from settling in Alberta.

Premier Brownlee declared he failed to see any advantage in the home-stead system. He did not think they were violating Canadianism by the residence clause which was designed to enable the province to take care of its own distressed citizens in other parts of the province.

D. M. Duggan declared that the Conservatives did not favor home-steading but for the present they would support the Government. Mr. Giroux in closing the debate, stated that not withstanding all the argument, he had heard he was still convinced the present policy was not to the advantage of development of the Peace River country. He said the Government had given no reason for opposing the motion, only excuses.

Another battle royal was staged on the resolution of Mr. Howson to restrict the powers of the Government in regard to guarantees. Mr. Howson hit out right and left at the administration policy, claiming they were assuming powers that no democratic government had a right to assume. He charged that they were able to pledge the credit of the province for years to come without consulting the accredited representatives of the people. He, for one, would not be a party to any such policy. It was time to call a halt, he declared.

The Government's reaction was warmly defended by Premier Brownlee who said that only members of the administration were in a position to make what guarantees were really urgent.

It would be folly, the Premier pointed out, to have to call the Legislature together in order to settle some small advance that the Premier might be called upon to make to the

THE SHORT COURSE

We would like to draw the attention of the farmers of the district, and especially the irrigation farmer to the Farm Short Course being held next Tuesday and Wednesday at the Provincial School of Agriculture here. Two full days of lectures and practical demonstrations will be given under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture and sponsored by the Board of Trade, and during these two days there will be present some of the outstanding authorities in the Dominion on the various subjects treated.

The exact personnel of the programme is not known yet, but lectures will be given in practical irrigation, which will include levels, amount of water, when to apply, etc. Hogs will be treated by Professor R. D. Sinclair who, we understand has just returned from one year's stay in Britain where he has been studying this question at close quarters, who will speak regarding the outlook of the foreign market for hogs, and will also speak on Management and Feeding of Hogs for profitable production. Potatoes, Poultry, Farm Gardens, and numerous other subjects will be treated, including a talk on the subject of "Balancing the Farm Budget."

We are aware of the attitude of some that these men are all theorists and therefore it is a waste of time to listen to them. We wonder just how many of these individuals take the time to study out their agricultural problems. It seems to us that our farming program is about the most haphazard thing we get into. We plant what our neighbors plant, if one succeeds all of us make money, but if one fails we nearly all go the same way. If some one strikes out on a new system or to try out some thing we all dub him a number of different kind of fool. If he succeeds and makes some money we praise him and try to find out how he managed it so we can horn in, or else we call him shrewd and a tightwad because he has a few dollars more than most of us.

When the Government is spending that huge sum that are spent every year in experiment and research. It seems worse than foolish for any of us to say that the assimilation of the results of this work is not valuable. Why not abolish the Experimental Farms, the R.O.P. Flocks of Poultry and Government tested herds of Dairy Cattle, Swine, etc., and tell the Government that what was good enough for people a hundred years ago or more is good enough for us and we do not desire to progress. Tell them we are not converted to the motor car and are desirous of going back to the horse and buggy for our travel and the ox team and walking plough. You say, what foolish than for us to carry on in the same old fashion and not try to make two kernels of grain grow now where one grew before.

The sole purpose of this study and research which represents such a vast expenditure each year, is to try and equip us so that we can hold our own in a rapidly changing world, where competition is becoming more keen every day. It costs no more to feed a 300 egg hen than it does a 100 egg hen, and the extra eggs mark the difference between profitable and unprofitable poultry keeping. The same is true of hogs, cattle, sheep, and everything we have to sell. The idea is to cut the costs of production and realize more profit out of what is sold. That is the idea back of the Short Course. Prices are low, and nearly everything under present production methods is produced at a loss. How many years can we continue to grow beets, wheat, etc., at a loss or how many hundred thousand hogs can we sell at less than production costs.

This course will help to show us where some of our losses occur and give us an opportunity to correct them. Maybe our stock is of the wrong type. It may be we need to remediate outbuildings. It may be we need to change some of our systems of feeding. Things that may have been A 1 a few years ago, may be entirely obsolete now, and because of these many questions the Short Course is arranged. Now, Mr. Farmer, arrange your affairs so that you can attend this course. Take your pencil and paper and make notes of what is said so that you can put these ideas into practice for a fair trial at least. We have the best district in all Alberta, let us make it what it should be and bring back prosperity to Raymond and district. Let's go.

WHY COPY READERS BECOME GREY

A certain percentage of the grey hairs that sprout each day on the editorial cranium are, no doubt caused by the errors that slink past the copy desk and pop up in all their ugliness in the day's edition. They seem to slip through the finest editorial fine comb, and though the result is some times appalling quite often it is comical enough to bring a grin even to the face of the harried editor.

Stewart Harral, director of public relations of Southeastern State Teachers College, has collected some of the more hilarious of such mistakes, which are printed in the December issue of "The Quill", organ of Sigma Delta Chi. Here they are:

Week-end trips, so popular last year on Canadian Railway lines, will remain in force this year after February 28, the date set for their discontinuation. Two Alberta speed-skating records were smashed at the recent Banff Winter Sports Carnival. The 220 yards event was won by A. E. Hardy, of Saskatoon, in 20 seconds flat, 4-5 seconds better than the former Alberta record. The Three mile event was also taken by Hardy in 9 minutes and 2-5 seconds, being 2-5 and 3-5 seconds less than the former Alberta record. Miss Margaret J. Nicol, of Drumheller, was elected Carnival Queen and will reign over the Banff Winter Sports Carnival of 1933.

Travellers in Canada at Easter-tide will have the benefit of the same ticket privileges as were granted them at Christmas, according to a recent announcement made by the Canadian Passenger Association on behalf of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways. Fifty-seven 10-year leases of salmon and trout fishing rivers, lakes and streams in New Brunswick will be put up to public auction at the Parliament Building, Fredericton, April 7 next, at upset prices ranging between $25 per annum and $12,000 per annum, is the announcement of Hon. At the close of a meeting of the directors of the Canadian Pacific held at Montreal, February 8, President E. W. Beatty announced that in order to help western farmers over the present period of depression the Company has offered to write-off interest on land contracts for the year 1931. This offer will be extended to the year 1932 on condition that the contract holder pays his taxes and one full installment on his contract this year. Further encouragement in the form of a bonus will be given to those who make payments on account of arrears of interest, the bonus to be in proportion to payment made. This should be of great assistance to contract holders on the Company's lands who have suffered through depressed markets or crop failures. (824) ion of examining every bill, clause by clause, to prevent anything being slipped through. This session, they say, there is to be no more agreeing to this or that without a thorough examination of just what is intended by the bill under discussion.

Back benchers, too, have intimated their intention of having their say on matters of importance to the public. They declare they are out to protect the tax payers to the fullest extent of their power.

The budget debate which was opened by W. R. Howson will continue all week, the house sitting nights in order to give the business.

THE WEEK WITH THE HOUSE AT EDMONTON

or that project which had for its subject the good of Alberta.

Hon. Mr. McPherson denied a statement that the Government was responsible for more than $11,000,000 of guarantees. Much of this amount previous Governments were responsible for, he claimed.

Attorney General Lymburn considered the resolution one of want of confidence in the Government. It was a declaration to the world that the Government's hands were tied.

After the Conservatives had intimated their support of the motion Mr. Howson again returned to the attack in closing the debate. He ridiculed the Government's arguments and declared there was no shadow of reason why the administration should not be able to decide on what guarantees they were likely to be asked for while the house was in session. The resolution, he declared, did not tie the government in the least in regard to urgent and necessitous cases.

The fur flew once more when the bill to amend the provincial loans act came up for second reading. The purpose of the bill is to extend the power of the lieutenant governor in council to raise by way of loan, any sum necessary to implement any guarantee given by the province.

The bill was at once challenged by G. H. Webster, Liberal leader, who moved that it be given a six months' hold. It was defeated by a vote of 29 to 17, Conservatives voting with the Liberals.

Mr. Webster declared the house was entitled to know what guarantees had to be made good and the necessity for making them good. He was not prepared to give the government a blank check, which was what the bill meant. Its previous financial record did not inspire confidence in the government, he said. He declared the house should have an opportunity of hearing the details of the terms of settlement and other information. The province should not be called upon to implement in 10 or 15 years something done now under blanket authority. Mr. Webster was supported by W. R. Howson, Liberal, Edmonton, H. J. Montgomery, Liberal, Wetaskiwin, F. R. Falconer, Liberal, Athabasca. They were opposed to government by order-in-council, which they claimed would be the effect of granting what was asked. For the Conservatives, W. E. Payne, Red Deer, declared the government had already gone a long way to impair the credit of the province by way of guarantee. He objected to giving wide power to implement promises without the fullest information.

Premier Brownlee stoutly defended the bill, pointing out that since 1922 there had been an act that gave similar powers to the government, but counsel for banks in the east had claimed that this was not sufficient for their purpose. The need had been urged in connection with the wheat pool bill.

The bill was given second reading without further division.

A bill to amend the treasury act also aroused the ire of the Liberal leader who declared he objected to issuing treasury notes to pay deficits.

After considerable debate a resolution proposed by H. C. Farthing, Conservative, Calgary, to reduce the members of the legislature from 63 to 45 was voted down by 47 to 9, Liberals and labor voting with the government. The result also carried with it the rejection of any change in the present system of voting.

During the debate on Mr. Howson's motion regarding guarantees D. M. Duggan, Conservative leader, clashed with the premier. Mr. Duggan declared that Alberta's losses on advances and loans amounted to more than $11,500,000, while taking into account intangible assets, the amount was $24,000,000.

Premier Brownlee: "Is it not a fact that practically all of the guarantees which make up the loss were purchased to and upon the authority of the legislature?"

Mr. Duggan: "Agreed."

The Premier: "Then if a resolution of this kind had been on the statutes it would not have saved the province this loss."

Mr. Duggan: "I don't agree. If a resolution like this had been in effect some of the guarantees would not have been made. There would have been a public consciousness awakened which would have been a safeguard."

Taken altogether the week has been a strenuous and lively one for the members of the house. For instance, the Liberals have already been asked the government with more questions than was fired at them during the whole of the last session. They have also declared their intent

ANNUAL STAKE "M" MEN—CLEANER BANQUET OUTSTANDING SOCIAL EVENT

Every great organization has traditions by which it lives. These traditions—glorified bits of history—or events that have thrilled—come marching out of the past to become the background for future and even greater events. Each tradition has its own particular glamor—its own emotion—its own appeal. We remember the past occasion and are stimulated to bring it back that we may live again its thrill.

Our Taylor Stake M. I. A. is rapidly building traditions. Its Father and Sons Outing—Golf and Greer Ball—Annual Drama—M Men—Cleaner Banquet—are looked forward to with the same interest as the portents of the future yesterday's thrill: to-morrow's hope and today's stimulus, each new year with anticipation. The All that we do in the future is conditioned by the traditions of yesterday and the achievements of today.

The M Men and Cleaner Girls of the M. I. A. have as their special "project" the promotion of proper social activity among the youth of their communities. All during the year they study social problems. They devote special attention to social background, and social atmosphere, with the desire to develop poise, grace and finesse under a clean, wholesome influence.

That the efforts of these M. I. A. groups are producing results was abundantly proved when more than 200 of these fine men and lovely girls met in their Annual Banquet. This classic, of Taylor Stake Social life was held in the Opera House at Raymond Feb. 26th. From the reaction of the guests to the good night waltz it was a classic.

The atmosphere of the evening was sweet and lovely. It was a reflection of the fine behavior and the friendly spirit of the assembled youth.

Tables were laid for the entire group on the spacious stage. Sprinkled with a bounteous repast, and surrounded by beaming faces, they presented a picture of rare beauty.

The dinner was prepared by the Cleaner, and delightfully served by a bevy of sweet Junior and Bee Hive girls.

Solon E. Low, Stake Director of M Men, was Toastmaster of the evening. He filled his post with ease and charm.

Mill Strong and his Sax trio "put the skids" well under "Old Man in digestion." Karl Williams and his quartettes of Welling fun makers Earl Bascom, who made his chaff talk, and Clint Hardy with his Joy Givers Club of Stirling, kept him right out of the house. Then Ferrie Zaugg upon his prancing pony monologued the gay crowd right out to the dancing floor.

The music delightfully suited the occasion and we glided the happy evening away. We were reluctant to go home when the proper hour arrived.

We hope we may be included in the happy group when next year's Annual Banquet comes along.

Did You Ever Stop To Think

(By Edson R. Waite)

THAT you should be proud of your city. YOUR faith in it should never waver. YOU should work hard for the betterment of your home city. YOU should get behind every movement for its advancement and push hard. YOU should have nothing but the fairest motives in all you do. YOU should advocate one for all and all for one when it comes to building the home city. WHAT helps your neighbor will help you. YOU should make up your mind to boost your city and work for it as hard as you can—then work a little harder. YOU should let the message of hope, faith and confidence which you breathe forth for your home city be broadcast far and wide. IF all your citizens have faith, trust, confidence and the realization in their hearts that they must do their best for the home city, the sky is the limit as to what can be done.

Bedroom Parlor Cars Are Very Popular

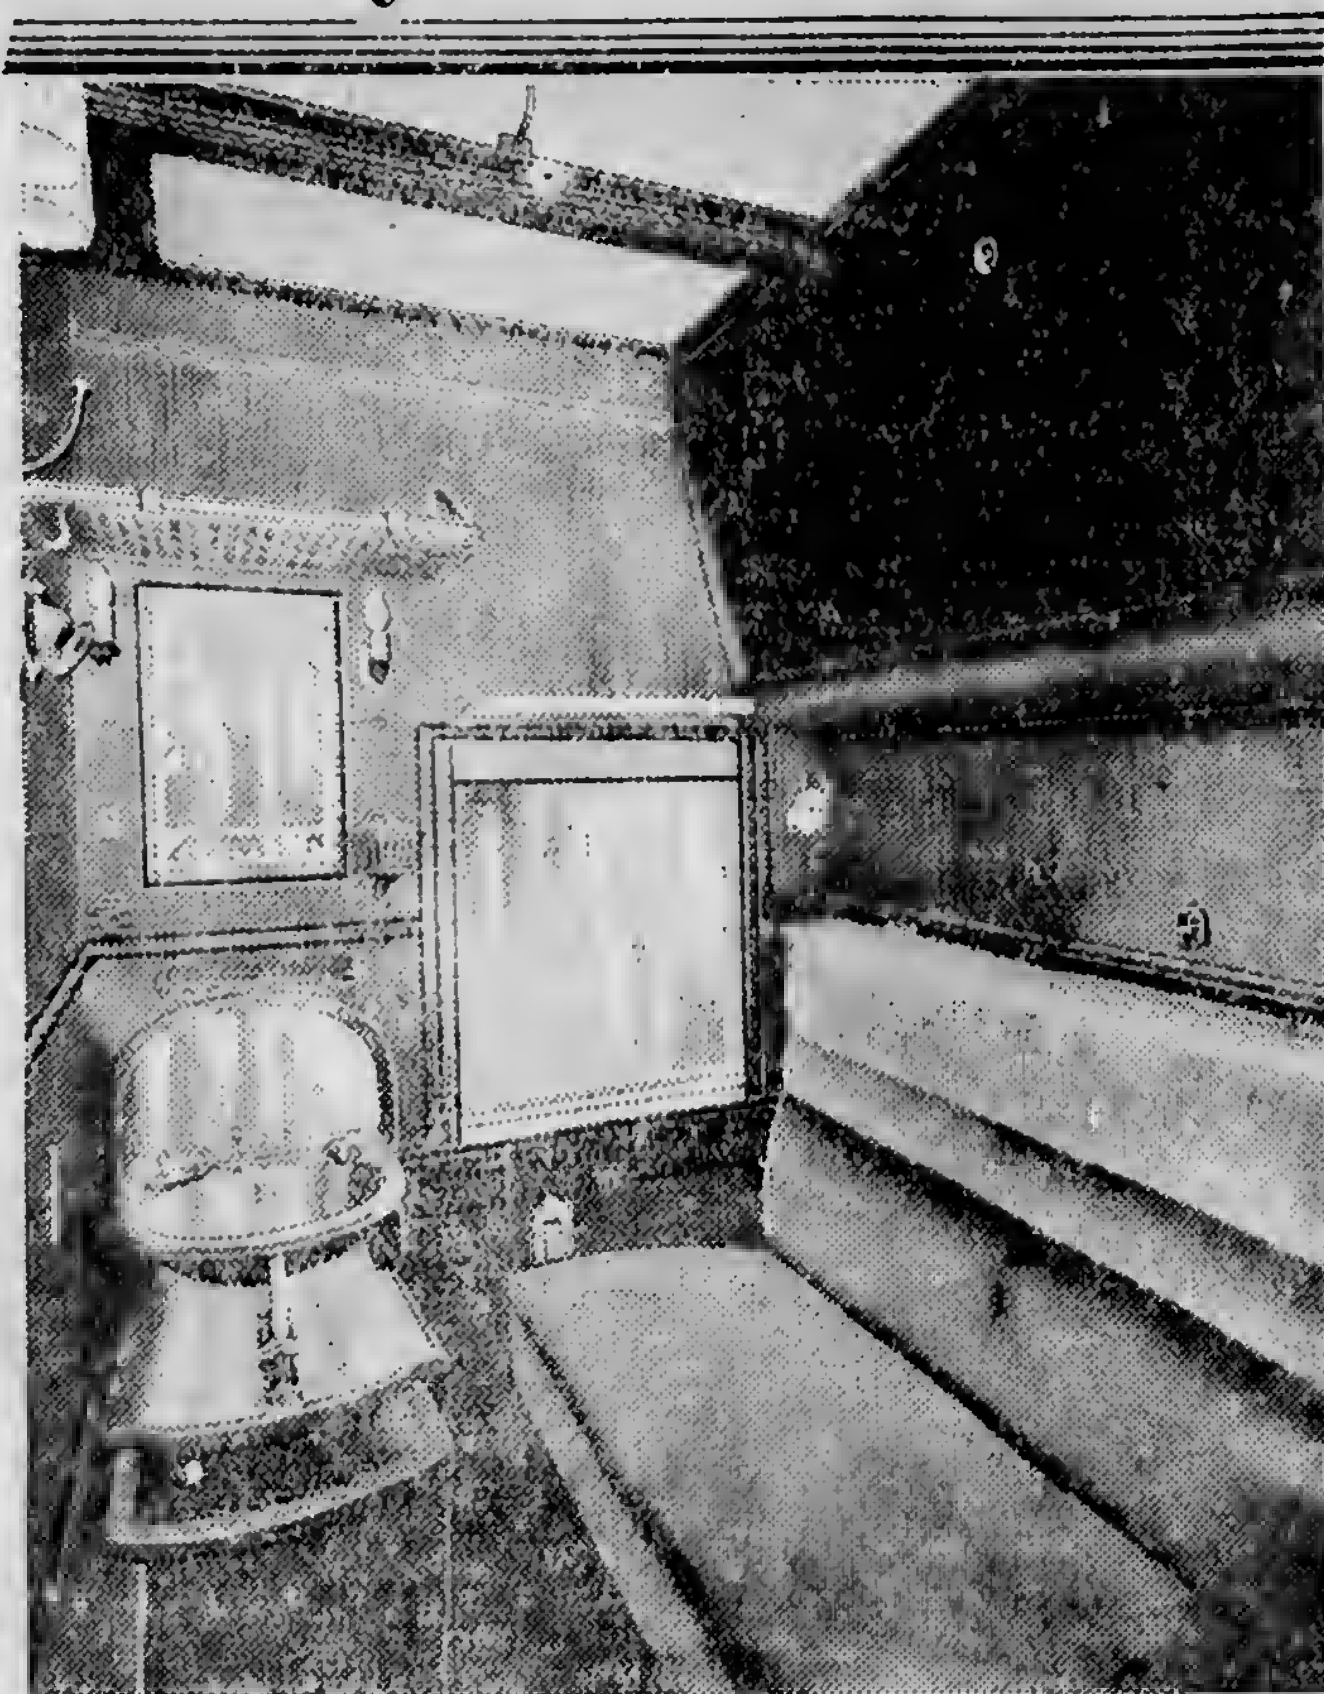

Please reserve bedroom on Canadian Pacific 11.59 p.m. train for Toronto. is a common call nowadays into the railway offices by the travelling public. The company reports a very heavy demand of late for this type of accommodation and this has necessitated operation of bedroom-parlor cars on the runs between Montreal and Quebec, Montreal and Toronto, Ottawa and Toronto, Toronto and Detroit, and Montreal and Detroit.

Privacy, comfort and the last word in convenience and luxury are keynotes of this latest development in overnight travel by Canadian Pacific as expressed in these single and double bedroom and compartment cars, which represent the equivalent of the best of hotel accommodation. They provide all the luxurious appointments of individual private rooms with a real bed that assures deep and refreshing sleep. Each room has toilet, lavatory, electric fan, overhead ventilator with exhaust fan, reading lamp and other conveniences, the whole being decorated in restful colors. In the double bedroom cars an overhead bed may be opened from the wall, if desired, affording additional facilities.

Some further features of the sleeping cars may be enumerated, which make the hours of sleep so refreshingly delightful. Temperatures are controlled thermostatically throughout the train; roller bearings assure smoothness of motion; coil spring mattresses invite restful slumber; heavily padded carpeting harmonizes with interior arrangements, creating a general soothing effect. Berths are wide and long and unusually roomy. The service is presented to travellers as a masterpiece of transportation luxury and comfort. It is the realization of all those refinements of art and efficiency of which travel equipment designers long have dreamed. From the inception of this new service it has won increasing favor among travellers who distinguish between good average service and perfection in travel. The word "moderne" has its fullest and most inclusive expression in these cars.

In the women's dressing rooms attached to the sleeping cars there is real comfort and satisfaction. The most fastidious woman will find facilities such as she would expect to see in a first-class hotel. Mirrored dressing table and other toilet accessories provide maximum accommodation without overcrowding. Here are vanity chairs conveniently placed, ample artificial and natural lights in softly colored shades, spotlessly white lavatories with hot and cold running water, specially dispensed soap and a never-ending supply of clean linen. This affords the requisite pendant to refreshing sleep—perfect toilette.

The men are treated in like fashion. They too have commodious dressing rooms where they can foregather not only for the purpose of making their toilets but also for an enjoyable smoke before retiring or after they have slept. Their room is perfectly lighted, well ventilated, amply supplied with lavatories of newest design and in decorations harmonizes with the general finish and furnishings.
